

A catalyst for Security Change Management & SecDevOps

Do you dread the trouble of mitigating unexpected compliance hits on a new project? Fixing limitations of penetration tests on pre-existing projects? Or even worse, reverting some of your decisions?

Whether you are in the application development process or plan to integrate external services, we believe Information Security should be an integral part of the project from the word go!

We developed the audius security profiling service – a unique and flexible approach to information security – from numerous real-world projects demands and insights.

How does audius stand out?

- We listen to you and your specific requirements.
- We understand your demands, and together we establish a focused scope for your specific security profile, based on workshops and documentation. No more wasted efforts and budgets.
- We act as a security architect and trusted advisor for all: from start-ups to high-demand market-leading companies across all sectors.

What makes the audius security profiling service unique?

- Holistic: Focus on security, privacy, scalability as well as your compliance requirements.
- Flexible: Whether it is an additional risk-assessment or the integration of data protection aspects, we provide structured analysis with clear improvement measures.
- Profound: If needed, a technical deep-dive, from code review to penetration testing is added to your specific project scope.

Your benefits: Better-informed decision making

- Our detailed security profiling service supports organizations and their projects with a clear illustration of their security posture.
- We identify potential risks, related to mandatory data protection or compliance standards and implement appropriate measures to maintain Security Change Management right from the start.
- We help to strike the perfect balance between efforts and benefits by internal optimization and effective utilization of your budget.

Our service culminates from decades of experience, state-of-the-art technologies and certified quality management as well as award-winning innovations. However, in the end it all comes down to our ability to listen – „Erfolg durch Zuhören“ – „success through listening“, as the meaning of our motto.
